

Introduction to Computer Science for Engineers

Why do I need a user account (again)?

You may wonder why you should create a user account again.

We set up the submission service anew for each instance of a course. At the end of the course all data is archived. Of course, information that is no longer needed – such as password hashes – is deleted. The next course starts “from scratch” again. That means: Every user account expires after the end of the course (i.e. usually usually after the exam).

This precaution protects above all your data!

See also our data privacy statement.